VALERO AGAIN NAMED TO 50 MOST COMMUNITY-MINDED LIST

Civic 50 also recognizes Valero as leader in the energy sector

SAN ANTONIO, June 29, 2016 — Valero for a third time was recognized as one of the most community-minded companies in America as a part of the Civic 50, an initiative of prominent civic-engagement organization Points of Light, and earned special honors as the leading company in the energy sector.

Civic 50 winners were announced Tuesday at Points of Light’s Conference on Volunteering and Service in Detroit, where leaders in volunteerism and civic engagement gathered to discuss social innovation, cross-sector collaboration and citizen engagement that can drive change.

“We are honored to have been recognized for a third consecutive time by the Civic 50, and especially gratified to be the top energy company,” said Joe Gorder, Valero Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer. “As Points of Light is the largest organization in the world dedicated to volunteer service, this is a fitting tribute to our employees who volunteer more than 136,000 hours each year and provide generous support to United Way and a host of other worthy recipients.”

“We are at the beginning of a boom in corporate social responsibility,” said Points of Light chairman Neil Bush, in the organization’s release. “Corporations are putting policies in place that prioritize connection with communities. They’re seeing a positive effect through meaningful engagement with community members, increases in employee satisfaction and morale and positive feedback from consumers.”

The Civic 50 survey was developed in partnership with a high-profile working group of researchers and industry thought leaders. Dozens of corporate advisors provided strategic guidance on the program’s objectives, including defining indicators, developing methodology and identifying partners and participants. As a result of this collaborative process, the initiative reflects leading insight and thinking about how corporations can and should connect with communities in a 21st century economy.

The Civic 50 is the only survey and ranking system that exclusively measures corporate involvement in communities. To see a full list of the winners, please visit www.Civic50.org.
